"MAY KING" WINS TOP CHAMPIONSHIP

Rock County Herd Age Bull, Owned by Dr. Munn Wins—Judge Brown Swiss.

The greatest Guernsey show in the county's history was staged Thursday afternoon at the Janesville fair with H. S. Hulce, Madison, as the judge.

There were around 100 head shown among the exhibitors, the Corium herd owned by F. Rueping, Fond du Lac, the Jefferson county herd, the Mount Zion ranch, Dane county, Brian E. Rundell, Livingston and the Rock county herd. It was state fair quality and almost national dairy show class.

The judging developed into a keen race between Rock county and the Corium farm and the Mount Zion ranch. The Corium farm was the local breeder as was freely predicted. Jefferson edged into the money but ran third in the total prize money won.

Rock county scored an outstanding victory in the age bull class for the county herd entry owned by Dr. W. A. Munn. May King's Duke of Waverley, owned by Dr. Munn, won the age bull class for the county herd entry.

There was some excitement around the livestock pens when the six age bulls took the ring. It was "some class" for the Corium farm and the Mount Zion ranch. The Corium farm was the local breeder as was freely predicted. Jefferson edged into the money but ran third in the total prize money won.

HARDING HONORED BY KIWANIS AS BROTHER MEMBER

Warren G. Harding was a member of the Marion club of Kiwanis, and before going to the White House was an active worker. It was partly because of this fact that the Kiwanis club of Janesville gave most of its luncheon hour Thursday to a tribute to the late President.

President H. S. Haggart read the tribute paid by John Moss, governor of the Wisconsin and upper Michigan district, and Stephen Rolles, member of the Janesville Kiwanis, spoke of the death.

Report was made by President Haggart of the district convention at Janesville, Wis., last week. It was in the 32 clubs in the district, and first in attendance. Janesville was also one of five clubs having 100 per cent for making reports.

Gov. Ray C. Pilon, who was elected lieutenant governor of the district, was nominated from the floor by President Haggart, a delegate from Janesville to the Ban. Chas. Pilon, of Janesville, was elected.

Mr. Pilon had made the report on the child welfare work and the contribution by the Janesville club for the underprivileged child, and was elected to the position.

Plans were made for the club picnic at DeJavan, Lake in two weeks.

RUSSELL GLYNN IS PIG CLUB WINNER

Paul Lathers Wins on Baby Beef Calves—Club Judge—Jury Completed.

Russell Glynn, Milton, Junction, won the grand championship in the Rock county pig club for the cup offered by the Janesville Gazette.

The sweepstakes honors were won on a Duroc gilt that was consigned to the county pig club by Marquart Brothers, and drawn June 10. The winner had carefully fed out his pig to carry weight, the desired smoothness and the animal was in the "bloom" for the show ring.

A pound-a-day gain had been made on the pig and Glynn skillfully managed to keep the pig weight evenly so that the gilt had few faults. It was a close race between the top winners in the Poland, Chester-White and Hampshire clubs, according to the spectators.

Paul Lathers, Beloit, won the Gazette cup for champion baby beef, a well fitted Shorthorn that also won at the Rock county fair.

The Pig Club. Again there was a big crowd on hand for the junior club judging and there was as much interest in the show as in the adult class. The first four top animals were picked, it being almost impossible to run the pigs down the line in consecutive order.

The Duroc-Jerseys. With 60 Husky Durocs running around the judging ring, Judge Dobson was required to use the maximum of his ability and experience as a judge. The group of first four were selected in the order named, Russell Glynn, first, George Sumstad, Beloit, John Lewis, Janesville, and Winifred O'Leary, Janesville.

In the group of the first 10 were Stark Larson, Beloit; Raymond Glynn, Milton Junction, a brother of the champion; Donald Galt, Oshkosh, Wis.; Walter Hoffman, Janesville; James O'Leary, Janesville; Donald Tierney, Evansville; Dorothy Schoof, Beloit; Elmer Triple, Janesville; Kenneth Woodard, Whitefish, and Orestes Woodard, Janesville.

EDISON AND FORD AT HARDING RITES; OUTING PLANNED

Marion—Throwing aside cares of business, invention and manufacture for a brief while, Thomas A. Edison, Henry Ford and H. S. Phipps will leave Marion late Friday for their annual camping jaunt over a number of states. The party, together with William F. Anderson of Cincinnati, resident bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church in Ohio, who also has been a member of the party in former years, but who is unable to make the trip this year, came to Marion to attend the funeral of the late President Harding. Mr. Harding was a member of the party two years ago.

Just where the party will go has not been definitely decided. Mr. Ford said today. The first stop tonight will be at the birth place of Mr. Edison at Milan, O. The party will stop at Marion, Ind., and will leave for the "spirit moves them" when they will go on to Mr. Ford's country place near Detroit.

From Detroit the itinerary likely will lead through northern Michigan and Wisconsin, but no definite schedule has been made up.

WASHINGTON RITES MOST IMPRESSIVE

Funeral Services for Nation's First President Related in Old Paper.

C. M. Craig of near Avalon, has brought to the Gazette office a copy of the United States Gazette, published at Kingston, New York, on January 4, 1800. It contains an account of the death and funeral of George Washington, first president of the United States and the first of the presidents to die. In the congressional proceedings of December 29, is a report of the action of the House of Representatives on the death and funeral of Washington.

The speaker's chair in the house was draped in black and during the session the members agreed to wear black.

The senate adopted a series of resolutions in which the closing paragraph appeared:

"Let his countrymen consecrate the memory of the heroic general, the patriotic statesman, and the virtuous sage; let them teach their children never to forget that the fruits of his labors and his example are their inheritance."

The funeral is described. The services conducted at Washington's Mount Vernon home.

On Wednesday last the mortal part of Washington the Great—the father of his country and the friend of man was consigned to the tomb, a solemn honors and funeral pomp.

A multitude of persons assembled from many miles around at Mt. Vernon, the choice spot and last resting place of the illustrious chief.

There were the groves—the spacious avenues, the beautiful and sublime scenes, the noble mansion, but alas the august presence was now no more. That great soul was gone.

His mortal part was there indeed; but how affecting! how awful the spectacle of such worth and greatness, laid to mortal eyes fallen. Yes, fallen!

In the long and lofty Portico where of the hero walked in all his glory now lay the shrouded corpse. The countenance still composed and serene, seemed to deserve the dignity of the spirit which lately dwelt in that lifeless form.

On the monument at the head of the coffin was inscribed "Surge Ad Jucundum—about the middle of the coffin, Gloria Deo, and on the silver plate—

General George Washington Departed this life on the 14th December, 1799. Age 68

"Between three and four o'clock, the sound of artillery from a vessel in the river, firing minute guns, awoke from our solemn sorrow—the corpse was moved—a band of music with mournful melody melted into all of the tenderness of woe.

The procession was formed and moved on in the following order: Cavalry, infantry, guard, music, clergy all with arms reversed; the general's saddle horse; pallbearers, Col. Sims, Ramsey, Payne, Gilpin, Marshall and Taylor, members, Masonic brethren and citizens.

Glory Lives Forever. "When the procession had arrived at the bottom of the elevated lawn on the bank of the Potomac, where the family vault is placed, the cavalry halted, the infantry marched to ward the Mount and formed their lines—the clergy, Masonic brethren, and the citizens, descended to the vault and the funeral service of the church was performed. The firing was repeated from the vessel in the river, and the guns echoed from the woods and hills around.

Three general discharges by the infantry, the cavalry and 11 pieces of artillery which lined the banks of the Potomac, marked the vault and the last tribute to the entombed commander in chief of the armies of the United States and to the departed hero.

The sun was now setting. Alas, the sun of glory was set forever. No—the name of Washington—the American president and general—will triumph over death. The unclouded brightness of his glory will illuminate the future ages."

The Chamberlain complimented the boys on their work and lectured for a brief period on the merits of the beef steak, all Short horns.

This closed the judging on junior club level. It was the most successful feature of the Janesville fair this year.

The other top three were Jens Norum, Jr., Evansville; Marcia Grifflin, Evansville; George Flaherty, Broadhead.

HARDING ACHIEVES LIFE'S AMBITION IN DEATH'S HOUR

Only those who knew Warren Harding today can bear testimony to the wholeheartedness that pervaded his personality. Cheerful, almost always, smiling even when political perils were subtracting every now and then a friend, there was a staid spirit of resignation to fate in his mood recently that suggested faith in Providence which somehow would right things and make all men better and better.

His was an influence of calmness, conciliation and incessant effort to win antagonists by kind words of compromise rather than bluster and threat.

New Feature at Library Shown Latest in Books

A new feature has been added at the Janesville public library, which will enable patrons to tell what books will be put on the shelves the next day, and what books have been added to the collection during the past week.

The building, at the entrance of the building, in the main lobby, there is a table which has been used in the past to advertise special series and groups of books. Mrs. Lydia Cates, new librarian, will put on this table a series of new books the day before the books are put on the shelf of "Recently Added Books." Thus one can tell what new books are coming in.

When the books have been put into circulation, the paper covers they will be tacked to the bulletin board on this table. There are four of such covers there now, the one creating the most interest being the one for "The Strachey's Books and Characters."

This is the first feature of many that Mrs. Cates is planning to use to create more interest on the part of the patrons, and to give them a better service.

ORIGINAL CRAWFORD PEACH. Ash barrels and garbage cans may contain treasures. Many years ago a New York man named Crawford who was visiting the national capital, happened to notice an extra large peach in the garbage can. He was standing on the curb, and he wrapped it in a piece of paper and carried it back home with him. He planted it and the seedling that came from that stone was the source of all the excellent Crawford peaches in the world.—Milwaukee Journal.

STORES VIE WITH FAIR ON PRODUCE

Two Distinct Exhibits Here This Week—Rock County Apples on Market.

There are two distinct exhibits of fruits and vegetables in Janesville this week. One is at the Janesville fair, where county people are exhibiting the best of Rock county products; the other is the local market, the exhibits of fruit and vegetables in the grocery stores. They have fruits from the south as well as the county products.

The market is now prime on peaches, and rows upon rows of baskets of them are seen in every store. They are perfect, almost every one of them, and at 25 cents a basket, a moderate price. Plums are almost as numerous, and are of many varieties—prices range from 15 to 20 cents a dozen, and from 50 to 75 cents a large basket. They are much juicier, more so than in former years.

Large nectar, sell for 40 and 50 cents a dozen, and while they are not the richest red of later in the season, their greenness does not make them unripe. Oranges range all the way from 25 cents to more than 50 cents a dozen. Grapes are at 45 and bananas at 12 and 14, remain the same as for several weeks past.

Local market is flooded with Rock county apples, and there has been a consequent reduction in price, that generally asked now being 5 cents per pound. When the premature season is considered, exportation of these apples is not much lower before fall. There seems to be a big crop of this fruit.

Watermelons and cantaloupes are of various sizes, quality and prices, the latter being from 10 cents to 20 and 25 cents each. Blueberries, some of the best of this season, are 35 cents. Grapes from Michigan from California, sell for 25 cents a pound.

THOUSANDS PASS BIER OF HARDING IN FATHER'S HOME

pay this last honor to the dead. No mother with exactness how many thousands had walked through the modest room, where the casket lay and gazed a moment on the peaceful face under the glass. There was a hush of mourning and friend whose greatness they had acclaimed. They had seen him in death as they had known him in life. The calm, kindly figure that marked him in his hours as president remained with him even after life had ceased. It was hard for them to realize that this old friend was dead.

The last day before the tomb shall claim these "hallowed relics" began peacefully and with no stir of martial legions to join in the last honors. Here and there on the streets walked men of the Ohio national guard, but they walked for the most part unarmed and merely to see that the peace and quiet of the sleeper was not disturbed in thoughtlessness. They would not go with him to his tomb.

Again today the stir of movement of life in Marion was hushed in honor of the dead. The great mills that surround the city were closed, and the traffic of commerce broke the quiet of the "shady streets." On the railroad, long trains came in to add new thousands from the north and south, while the gathering, but no whistle blew and the clanging of the bells was stilled.

Except for the multitude that grew hourly to fill the sidewalks with moving humanity, Marion was a city of silence in her sorrow, a silence that would not be broken until the simple funeral train which had been in the day to bear the dead president to the tomb that awaited him. Then there must come an added stir and movement that could not be avoided, then would voices be raised in prayer as the last rites were said. But this morning hours were peaceful and calm and as untroubled as the sleep of the man thus honored.

Another president was riding toward Marion during these morning hours, coming to say farewell to a man he loved and certain to whom he had been devoted in public service. Arrangement for reception of the special train bearing President Coolidge to Washington had been completed long before his arrival, and for once the first coming of the nation's chief executive to a small town was marked by no cheering or clamor.

Will Speed back. Before darkness falls the presidential train will be passing over the rails again to Washington, for the business of the state cannot wait for more than a brief moment of sorrow, however great the loss. Then, Mr. Coolidge will be turned back to the "White House," leaving his heart in the tomb at Marion.

His availability will be back to live here, close to his dead, as plans now are known. But tomorrow in Washington he faces a new and terrible ordeal, the new president of the nation, who must be marked by no cheering or clamor.

Back to White House. President and Mrs. Coolidge had assured Mrs. Harding days ago that they might come to Marion to see the White House her home, but she would not have it so for more than the brief time required to ship away the personal things that had been hers during her brief time as first lady of the land.

In her decision to leave for Washington immediately after the vault had been closed, Mrs. Harding gave further proof of the dauntless courage, which has brought her the admiration of the nation in these hard days of trial. Her spirit would not brook delay, in facing the task she must do. The every day things of life must go on however sick the heart.

Line 15 Blocks Long. The Harding home was opened again to the public at 3 a. m., two hours before the time set for the public review to begin again, and the long silent line began to move. A detachment of artillery troops was on duty directing the line, which had lengthened to more than 15 blocks.

Thousands, despairing of opportunity to see their dead president and friend, made a solemn pilgrimage to the home where his body lay. They went on the opposite side of the street and finally reaching the spot, would stand uncovered in silence for a few minutes before being forced to move on. That others might take their places to pay their respect and a last farewell.

Crowd in Orderly. The long line, six feet abreast and extending down Center street into the very heart of the business district, where every door was locked, was most orderly. It was broken for a few minutes at 3:30 to permit employees of the Marion Star, with whom the late president labored in getting out his newspaper for years, to take a farewell look at their old employer, at special request of Mrs. Harding.

The Riddle of the Spinning Wheel

By M. E. and T. W. HANSHEW
Being an Exploit in the Career of Hamilton Cleek, Detective
Copyright, 1932, by Doubleday, Page & Co., and published by arrangement with the New York Newspaper Syndicate of New York City.

SYNOPSIS. Lives of her father and others in the Duggan home at Ayron castle. Maud Duggan seeks help from Scotland Yard. Hamilton Cleek, under the name of Doland, takes up the attempt to solve the mystery of the Spinning Wheel, which on occasions and without the aid of human hands starts running. Inevitably a death follows. The head of the house is old Francis Doland, Hamilton Duggan, his son by a first wife, the daughter and a second wife. "Cyril," the son of the first wife, is believed that the wife is plotting for the death of all in order that her son may be the heir of the Ayron castle. He makes a number of acquaintances and finds that Ross, the eldest son of the house, has made his father angry by lighting the house with electricity and adding other modern innovations. He is attempting to have Ross disinherited and her own son, Cyril, made the heir. At a family gathering the elder Duggan is slain while seated in his chair in a moment when the lights go out. Maud Duggan tells Cleek, (Doland) about it.

"Yes, through the courtyard and down the stone steps. But it ain't never used. Your gentleman with Miss Maud, just for a bit of fun like I'm nosing to couple or bottles or best not up, if you've a mind to fetch 'em for me, an' when yer gets back I'll give yer a swallow of Buryman's. At the same time, you're scared stiff—even at this time of day."

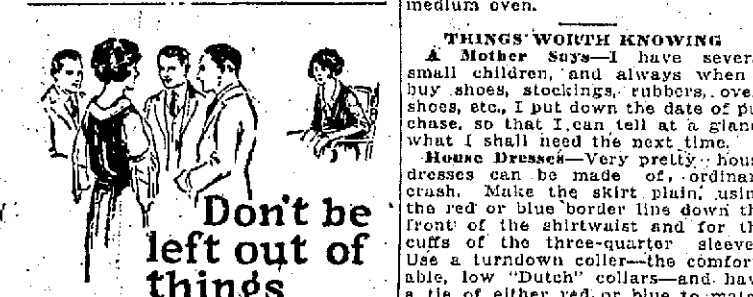

Doland favoured him with a withering look, being perfectly unable to find his voice, and then proceeded to the door with steady step, flung it open, and straightway began to descend the staircase to the cellar, his rubber-soled shoes making no sound upon the wooden stairs with their carpeting of thick felt, and with his heart literally in his gaping mouth. Down, down, down the stairs led him, and then he heard a large, from the top of them, turning suddenly to see Jarvis's smiling face above, framed in the open doorway, heard the door slam loudly, and the key grate in the lock, and realized that he had been the victim of a pleasant little practical joke.

TIRED, NERVOUS MOTHERS
are the direct cause of much unhappiness in our homes; their condition irritates and wears upon the husband and often ruins a child's disposition. Often the condition of the mother is often due to some weakness which makes her entirely unfit to perform her household duties and bear the strain upon her nerves that goes with child-rearing. Every woman who finds herself in this condition should remember that statistics prove that 98 out of every 100 women who suffer from female ailments are helped by Lydia's Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and lose no time in giving it a fair trial.—Advertisement.

AS NATURE INTENDED

No longer is it necessary to take laxatives that pain and irritate—that leave you more constipated than ever when the drug effect wears off. Dr. H. S. Thacher, the celebrated stomach specialist, has perfected a purely vegetable tonic that is delicious and does not irritate, but will assist to the delicate intestines. In countless numbers of tests among men, women and children Dr. Thacher proved that his vegetable Laxative and Blood Purifier not only gives overnight relief from constipation, but so strengthens the stomach and intestines that your bowels move gently, thoroughly and naturally every day, in the week—and this means the lasting relief you have always wanted.

Take a "delicious" tablespoonful after the next meal. Sleep better tonight and get up tomorrow feeling full of strength, energy and pep. It is sold with the guarantee that it will give you relief. If for any reason you fail to get complete satisfaction and relief.

Heart and Home Problems By ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of seventeen and I have a friend who has a small quarrel with her, and we had good times together. I have several friends and gain new ones right along and yet I feel if I were to make up with her she would be sorry that she said mean things about me. I do not miss her and yet I do not feel that I can go through this world feeling that I have won a victory.

If you were I what would you do? RESTLESS.

Speak to the girl as if she were your friend. It is not necessary to regard her as an enemy even if you see little of her in the future. As you grow older you will find that people are not perfect and you will have many with faults which are more trying to you than they are to love in spite of grave faults and to forgive for the sake of the good you can see in your friends.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am very quick tempered for one only fourteen and often quarrel with my friends.

If I have a quarrel with one of my best friends about two weeks ago and she has acted unkindly ever since. She does not say things about me as most enemies usually do and still she does not over me as a friend. I miss her friendship immensely.

Before our quarrel we were inseparable and now she does not even speak. Should I be the first to speak or should I wait until she speaks?

Be big enough to speak. You were absent.

THANK YOU.

If the dress is new and not soiled, you can probably remove the rings by soaking them over the night in a teakettle. I would advise, however, that you send the garment to a professional cleaner.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a very dear friend who is interested in a young man who works at the grocery store where she trades. He seems very nice and well-bred and all appearances of a refined family. I am certain he is interested in my friend. Please suggest some perfectly legitimate way in which she might make advances.

Also, would it be wrong for me to entertain a lonesome married man while his wife is visiting?

THANK YOU.

Your girl friend might ask the clerk to come to see her some evening. I can suggest no other way to further the acquaintance, and I do not consider such a method particularly blind.

I would not advise you to entertain a married man during his wife's absence.

YOUR BABY and MINE By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age, or on any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

A Constant Reader writes: "Being a constant reader of your department, I wish you would advise me at what age a child can have orange juice. He is breast fed. What is the earliest age at which children start teething? For the last few days the baby is biting his fists and sucking his thumb. He is two months old and weighs 14 pounds. Could this be a sign of teething?"

Answer: "I hardly think the baby is teething at such an early age. Most babies start getting teeth at about four or five months of age. Sometimes much later but seldom very much earlier. Perhaps the baby is suffering from gas or heat or merely indigestion. Don't begin to worry about teething yet."

Mrs. J. W. N. writes: "Please advise a list of playthings for a baby of one year. I am in doubt as to the kind of constructive toys he should have."

Answer: "Toys that can be washed, that won't hurt if the baby decides to eat them are the ones he should have. Clothes that he can pull over his head, blocks, balls which can be tossed to the baby and will teach him to grasp and watch the direction, are the best first toys. Blocks are especially being constructive."

Help play ball with him but when he wants to build up the blocks and

MOLES AND WARTS
Personally, I seldom consider moles a disfiguring, even when they appear on the face, neck or arms. But even if you disagree with me, I strongly urge you never to attempt to remove 'em' tamper with their blemishes yourself. If you consider them too unsightly for toleration, I urge that you consult a physician—for the reason that birthmarks, moles or scars, if irritated can so easily start a cancerous growth.

If you consult a reliable skin specialist he will be able to remove the blemish quickly and easily, if it is not dangerous. Or he will warn you in time for a cure if the growth should be cancerous, or have a tendency that way.

Warts are much less dangerous, but neither should they be tampered with to too great an extent. In some cases a little olive or castor oil applied every night will dissolve them. Turpentine rubbed into a

I could not do my work, and while I was down sick a lady from out of town sent me a bottle of May's Wonderful Remedy which proved truly wonderful. I believe it is the best medicine on earth." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. The New Self-Hanging
Vudor-Ventilating
Porch Shades

To get real, continuous, every-day, all Summer long pleasure from your porch, it must be protected from the Sun. This is evident to all of us—but simply protection from the sun does not make your porch habitable—far from it. You must have ventilation. The hot air must be removed from the top of the porch.

The New Patented

permits the hot air to escape from the top of the porch through a wide open VENTILATOR woven in the shade itself at the extreme top, where the sun cannot shine in upon you. This Vudor woven-in-the-shade Ventilator automatically clears the porch of impure hot air and permits a continuous, gentle circulation of air without drafts.

The Only Shade Made With A Ventilator

SELF-HANGING

VENTILATING
PORCH SHADES

The New VUDOR
Self - Hanging Device

enables you to hang a shade in five minutes—not a screw used. The old way of attaching a shade to the porch with screws took twenty minutes or more. With the new Self-Hanging way you can unhook the shade in the Fall—if you wish—and rehang it in the Spring in less than two minutes and this doubles the life of the Shade. Let us demonstrate the new VUDORS for you.

FORT WOMAN HAS MOTH COLLECTION

Mrs. Frank Fuller, Friend of Gene Stratton Porter, Is Expert.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Fort Atkinson — A caller at the home of Mrs. Frank Fuller, 423 Washington street, will marvel at the beautiful collection of moths carefully mounted and encased which fills the walls of the room given to the collection.
About five years ago Mrs. Fuller found her first cocoons. She watched them until the moths emerged, watched the moths until they laid their eggs and the eggs until they hatched into tiny worms. She fed the worms leaves and watched them grow until they attained their full size and spun themselves cocoons. Becoming thoroughly interested by this time, she began collecting worms of all kinds and picked branches of leaves of the plant or tree on which they were found and placed them in jars of water to keep fresh. On these leaves the worms were fed until ready to go into their pupa state. She found that some of the worms did not spin a cocoon, but burrowed into the earth of a plant jar provided and emerged as moths. The caterpillars form a chrysalis and from it comes the butterfly.

Mrs. Fuller is more interested in moths than in butterflies, because moths do not fly in the day light and it is only by careful searching that they are found. They sleep by day, hanging from the under branches of low bushes and grasses, most often in swampy or marshy places.
In a marsh near Palmyra she has lately found a Baltimore moth for which she has been searching since she read that no moth collection was perfect without one, over two years ago.
A short time ago Mrs. Fuller found a female luna moth and, having read that a moth will find its mate, she tied a thread to it and at night fastened it to a branch of an apple tree. Early the next morning she found the female as she had left it, and with it a large male luna.
Hatches Many Specimens
Besides the moths found in this locality, Mrs. Fuller has some from different places which have been sent her by friends who know of her collection. Many have been sent from Pennsylvania by her daughter. She also has one sent her from England by a friend.
Mrs. Fuller does not mount the moths caught if she can possibly obtain eggs to hatch, for in catching the moth its delicate wings are apt to be injured and only perfect specimens are desired. Besides her mounted collection of over 200, she has moths in all stages of development.
To aid her in her work she uses the following books: "Butterfly and Moth Book," by Ellen Robertson Miller; "How to Know the Butterflies," by Comstock, and "Moths of the Lumberlost," by Gene Stratton Porter.

Moths for Filming
When she wants to know something about a moth or worm that her books do not tell her, she writes Miss Porter and always receives a satisfactory reply.
Last week she received a letter from her saying she is about to film "A Girl of the Lumberlost," and would like certain moths of Mrs. Fuller's collection for use in her picture. All moths of that species were sent.
She writes descriptions herself and they are interesting because she does not tell something she has previously read from a book, but something from her own experience, in her own way, with the real objects at hand.

How Jelly-Making Tells a Gasoline Story

YOU can get a little more jelly by squeezing the bag—but it's the clear, natural drip that makes the real thing.

Any housewife will tell you that the squeezing pushes out a lot of cloudy, pulpy particles that make a rough, prideless, half-way jelly such as she would never put on the table if the minister came to dinner. And it's much the same when it comes to making gasoline. First the crude oil gives up its comparatively small quota of clean volatile gasoline—such gasoline as

Wadhams True Gasoline

This real gasoline comes away willingly, by the simplest of "straight-run" distilling processes. It is the clear, genuine gasoline of old-fashioned days, bright, keroseneless and devoid of free carbon.

But the cracking process is not satisfied with quality at the expense of quantity. It wants more, and tries to get it by "squeezing the bag." And surely enough, it comes—not a real gasoline, but a wretched counterfeit of it, reeking with pushed-out atoms of kerosene and free carbon, lacking the necessary balance of hydrogen to combine into real gasoline. With sufficient urging, part of it feebly explodes, leaving behind it in your motor and crankcase its foul overload of carbon and kerosene.

Contrast with it the clean, sharp, complete explosiveness of true gasoline that costs a trifle more per gallon but keeps your motor thankful.
